

Would You Rather Choice Game

Summary -this is a simple choice game (very similar to “Are you more like?”) asking students to decide which of two choices they would rather do, such as would you rather have purple hair or no hair? This can be set up as an energizer movement activity as well - asking students to go to one side of the room (for example everyone who would rather have purple hair to one side and no hair to the other). Once there the real language learning element can be implemented, having students share first with a partner why they made the choice they did and then with the whole group.

This also could be expanded to as many as 3 or 4 choices - using a set-up like the four corners of the room.

Resource Links

This google slide deck has 13 premade slides with fun choices for would you rather - or you can add your own starting with the last slide.

This .pdf has a list of over 100 would you rather questions that are appropriate for school students of all ages

STEM Connections

This could be expanded to practice understanding key vocabulary and concepts from a number of STEM units such as:

Would you rather be an electron, a proton or a neutron in an atom?

Would you rather live in an arctic or a desert biome?

If you could add a sensor to your body - would you rather have an infrared sensor or ultrasonic?